PRESS ADVISORY

Political Action Committee participation in the 1983 legislative election increased by nearly 50 percent over the 1981 election. In total, 112 PACs reported contributing $1,675,629 to legislative candidates, state political party committees and other statewide committees. Contributions (monetary and in-kind) to candidates or their supporting committees accounted for $1,468,179 of the total contributed. This represented a 61 percent increase over contributions to candidates in the 1981 legislative election. The remaining $207,450 was contributed to the state political party committees and other statewide committees, representing a decrease of 11 percent from the 1981 elections.

The decrease in PAC contributions to state party committees is even more significant when comparing contributions made only to the state party committees in 1981 and 1983 and not including the contributions to other non-party statewide committees. In the 1981 election, PACs contributed $232,850 to the state political party committees. In 1983 this amount decreased by 19 percent to $188,100. An additional $19,350 was contributed to two statewide committees: Friends of Alan Karcher and The Governor's Club.

Scott A. Weiner, the Commission's Executive Director, commented that the report "indicates further the changing character of campaign financing in New Jersey. The Legislature and the Governor should, without further delay, begin considering whether the State's statutes accurately reflect the State's public policy concerning financing of legislative elections. Regardless of the outcome, issues concerning the relative role of individuals, political parties and political action committees are worthy of legislative consideration."

Seventy Senate candidates received $703,287 while 128 Assembly candidates received $764,892 from the PACs. The other 18 Senate candidates and 44 Assembly candidates received no contributions from PACs.

PACs reported making over 80 percent of their contributions to incumbent legislators. Challengers received only $267,235 from PACs while the incumbents received $1,200,944. Each incumbent received at least $1,900 from PACs while 62 out of 148 challengers received no PAC contributions. The average total amount received by incumbents was $10,819 while challengers received an average of $1,805.

Winners also received over 80 percent of the PAC funds as compared to less than 20 percent for those who lost. Winners received $1,194,692 while those who lost received $273,487. All successful candidates received at least $1,800 from PACs. The average amount contributed to winning Senate candidates was $13,179, while the successful Assembly candidates averaged $8,344 from PACs. Unsuccessful Senate candidates received an average of $3,669 from PACs and unsuccessful Assembly candidates received an average of $1,058.

PACs reported contributing $790,224 to 111 Democratic candidates and $677,605 to 85 Republican candidates. Two Independent candidates received a total of $350.

The 1983 legislative election was the first election where a PAC contributed more than $100,000 to legislative candidates, state party committees and statewide committees. Two PACs, Builders PAC ($179,671) and NJ Dental PAC ($103,300), contributed more than $100,000, and a third PAC, NJ Education Association PAC, contributed $99,603.

The number of "large" contributions to legislative candidates increased significantly over the 1981 election. ("Large" is defined as more than $1,000.) PACs reported making 171 contributions of more than $1,000 during the 1983 election. This represents a 120 percent increase over the 1981 election when 77 such contributions were made. In the 1981 election, the largest contribution made to a legislative candidate was $7,000. This contribution was made by NJ Dental PAC to Senate candidate Gerald Cardinale

(R-39). The largest contribution in the 1983 legislative election was given by Builders PAC to Senate candidate Ralph Salerno (R-30). Builders PAC's contributions to Mr. Salerno totaled $29,296.

The number of candidates receiving more than $10,000 in PAC contributions increased from 17 in 1981 to 51 in 1983. Twelve Senate candidates in 1983 received more PAC money than the top Senate candidate, Francis Herbert (D-39) $17,775, received in the 1981 legislative election. In the Assembly, five candidates received more PAC money than the top recipient in 1981, Dean Gallo (R-26), $16,648.

In the 1983 Senate races, the top ten recipients all exceeded $20,000 while in 1981 no candidates received that amount. Of the top ten in the Senate, three lost their respective elections, including the top recipient, Ralph Salerno (R-30), who received $38,946 from PACs. In 1981, two of the top ten lost, including the top PAC recipient, Francis Herbert (D-39).

In the 1983 Assembly races, three candidates exceeded $20,000 while no candidates exceeded that amount in 1981. The top PAC recipient was Assemblyman John Paul Doyle (D-10) with $25,113 in PAC contributions. In 1983, two of the top ten Assembly candidates lost their respective races while in 1981 only one of the top ten was unsuccessful.

Attached is a set of tables reflecting the PAC activity in the 1983 legislative election. Table I is a ranking of the 112 Political Action Committees by the amount they reported contributing to the legislative election. Tables II and III rank the Senate and Assembly candidates by the total PAC contributions PACs reported making to them.

This report and supporting tables contain information from the PACs' 25 and 7 day pre-election reports and 15 day post-election report filed for the 1983 general election, as well as information contained in 60 day post-election reports filed in August 1983 for the 1983 primary election.

In August, the Commission plans to publish a report on the PAC activity in the 1983 legislative general election, along with information on contributions to and expenditures by the candidates. The planned report will be similar to the Commission's report The 1981 New Jersey Legislature General Election Contributions and Expenditures. Included in the planned report will be additional summary tables and a PAC matrix containing contributions made by all PACs to all legislative candidates.
