PREFACE

This report concerns contributions and expenditures in the 1981 New Jersey Legislative Election. The report is presented in two volumes. Volume 1 presents general information summarizing campaign finance activity occurring during the election. Volume 2 presents a summary of each candidate's financial activity.

This report was prepared under the supervision of Juana M. Schultz. The principal researchers for this report were Peter D. Nichols and R. David Rousseau.

INTRODUCTION

In November 1981, New Jersey elected a new Legislature in the most expensive general election legislative campaign since financial disclosure requirements were enacted in 1973. Candidates and committees spent $4.3 million and the two state party committees spent an additional $3.7 million, chiefly for legislative races. This total of $8.0 million represents an increase of $4.0 million over the $3.9 million spent in 1977, the last time both houses of the Legislature were elected.

This report has been prepared by the Election Law Enforcement Commission in furtherance of the statutory mandate that the Commission provide summary information of campaign finance activity. N.J.S.A. 19:44A-6. This report has been published in two volumes. Volume 1 contains general data on the 1981 legislative campaigns. Section I provides general information on candidates, including districts in which they ran, political party affiliation, incumbency status and election results. Section II of this volume provides summary information concerning the total expenditures for each legislative candidate as well as the total cost per race in each district. Comparative figures are provided for the total expenditures of the 1981, 1979 and 1977 Assembly races and the 1981 and 1977 Senate races.

The report summarizes, in Section III, contribution information based on the type of contributor, the location of the contributor (i.e. in and out of district and out of state), and the dollar amount of individual contributions. In Section IV, information is provided on political action committees on the amount of funds they donated to each candidate and the aggregate amount distributed by each committee. Major contributors to the individual legislative campaigns and to the two state party committees are identified in Section V along with the total dollar amount contributed by the particular contributor. These aggregate contributor summaries identify individuals and businesses, which donated funds in excess of $2,500, and all unions and union associations which contributed more than $100 to legislative races.

Volume 2 of this 1981 Legislative summary, to be published in February 1983, contains individual summary information sheets for each legislative candidate.

The information in this report is taken from disclosure statements filed by candidates and their supporting committees. The New Jersey Campaign Contributions and Expenditures Reporting Act (Campaign Reporting Act, N.J.S.A. 19:44A-1 et seq.), enacted in 1973, provides a system of uniform disclosure of campaign finance information. The disclosure requirements extend to all candidates for State, county and municipal office, as well as campaign committees and political party committees and clubs. The Campaign Reporting Act requires the disclosure of the name and address of each contributor of more than $100 in the aggregate. These requirements exist regardless of the amount of money expended on behalf of the candidate's campaign. Additionally, those candidates expending more than $1,000 must report all expenditures and the total aggregate amount of contributions received. All candidates must file either the detailed disclosure report (Form R-1) or the Sworn Statement in lieu of report (Form A-1) as of the 25th day before the election. Those candidates filing the detailed Form R-1 must supplement this information 7 days before the election, 15 days after the election, and every 60 days thereafter until such time when they can submit a final report which accounts for any unexpended balance and disposes of all outstanding obligations. Unless otherwise stated, the financial data in this report include only that activity reported as of the 15 day post-election filing, covering the campaign activity from the inception of the general election campaign through November 16, 1981. Information filed by candidates and committees concerning activity since that time is available for public review at the Commission's office.

This report deals specifically with the 1981 general election for the offices of State Senator and State Assembly. The data have been organized in a consistent format to enable the reader to make comparisons among candidates with greater ease. Furthermore, the report extracts key elements, for example the type of contributor, also for the purpose of making it easier for the reader to make comparisons and reach conclusions.

In preparing this report, the Commission has not attempted to interpret data. Rather, the information has been compiled as a reference source to assist the user in obtaining information concerning the 1981 legislative campaigns.

CANDIDATE INFORMATION SHEET - METHODOLOGY AND DATA COLLECTION

Data referenced throughout this report are the accumulation of financial information gathered for each legislative candidate whose total campaign expenditures for the 1981 general election exceeded $1,000. These individual summary information sheets are contained in Volume 2 of this report which will be published in February 1983. Nevertheless, in order for the reader to have an accurate understanding of the information provided within this report, a sample of the summary information sheet and an outline of the procedures used to collect and present this financial data are provided here, in Volume 1.

A sample of the summary can be found at the conclusion of this section. The summary begins with the left section of the two-part page. It identifies the candidate by full name, the office sought, party affiliation, the legislative district number and the election result. Tables 1.1 through 1.4 in Section I identify the Senate and Assembly candidates both by district number and alphabetically. The second section of the summary sheet identifies a candidate's supporting committees. The supporting committees are essential to understanding the method used in compiling a candidate's financial data. In many instances, a candidate is supported by committees in addition to, or other than, his or her personal campaign fund. Candidates often pool resources with others of the same party in addition to, or in lieu of, a single candidate depository. The extent to which a candidate controls all or part of the financial activities varies. Therefore, to insure an overall view of the candidate's total campaign activity, the financial data of all of the candidate's related committees were merged under a single candidate listing. The supporting committee's contributions and expenditures were prorated to the individual candidate based on the identified candidate's proportion shown as an allocation of expenditures made on the candidate's behalf by the supporting committee and reflected in the committee's campaign financial reports.

In its disclosure reports, a committee identifies the candidates supported and the amount expended on behalf of each. Based on this allocation, the percentage of the committee's activity related to the individual candidate was calculated and prorated to the individual candidates for both the committee's expenditures (disbursements and outstanding obligations) and the committee's receipts. For example, the Committee to Elect XYZ allocates 30 percent of all expenditures to candidate Y. When the Committee to Elect XYZ receives a $1,000 contribution from John Smith, 30 percent of that contribution is attributed to candidate Y. Therefore, contributor Smith appears, in this report, as a contributor to candidate Y's campaign in the amount of $300 (30 percent of the $1,000 contribution). The information summary sheets presented in Volume 2 of this report identify the supporting committees whose financial data are merged with the individual candidate's campaign fund. They also identify the percent of the committee's transactions attributed to the candidate. In Section I of Volume 1, Table 1.9 identifies supporting committees for each candidate, other than the candidate's individual campaign depository or a joint campaign fund which clearly identifies the candidate(s) supported.

The third section on the left hand side of the information sheet summarizes the dollar amounts of receipts which include contributions, transfers and loans. Contributions are listed in two categories: monetary contributions and in-kind contributions. Monetary contributions are funds in the form of cash, check and money orders. In-kind contributions represent the fair market value of a tangible item or paid personal service supplied to the campaign without cost. Examples of in-kind contributions include donated office space to be used as headquarters, billboard space owned by the contributor, and the services of a secretary who works on behalf of the candidate's campaign and whose employer continues to pay the secretary's salary. Uncompensated volunteer services are not in-kind contributions. The value of an allocation of expenditures made on behalf of the candidate by committees other than those previously identified as a supporting committee are also included as part of the amount for in-kind contributions.

A transfer represents the movement of funds between two reporting committees. Transfers often represent the reimbursement of expenses which were paid for jointly by a single candidate and yet benefitted other candidates.

Outstanding loans are considered receipts to the campaign until such time that they are repaid. Often loans still outstanding at the end of the campaign are forgiven and converted into contributions. Therefore, loans are not included in the contributor tables which follow. However, loans outstanding as of the 15 day post-election report (reflecting activity through November 16, 1981) are identified separately at the end of the individual contributor listings in Section V of this report.

The next section on the left-hand side of the page is a summary of the candidate's campaign expenditures. These include all payments actually disbursed and any outstanding obligations incurred, but not yet paid, by the campaign as of November 16, 1981. The total indebtedness of the campaign is made up of outstanding obligations combined with any loans outstanding as of the 15 day post-election filing. The total reported cost of the campaign is made up of the in-kind contributions which represent disbursements made on the candidate's behalf outside of the campaign depositories plus the expenditures made by the supporting committees.

Also shown is the campaign cost per vote which was calculated in two different ways. The first entry identifies the campaign cost per registered voter. The second entry identifies the campaign cost per actual number of votes received.

Finally, the expenditure section of the form shows the amount of surplus campaign funds available as of the closing date of the 15 day post-election report. This amount combines the cash balance on hand of the candidate's campaign fund and the cash balance of the supporting committees. The amount of surplus campaign funds must be viewed in conjunction with outstanding obligations to determine whether these funds, in whole or in part, are available for obligations yet unpaid. Thus, the reported amount of surplus campaign funds is a gross amount that must be compared to the amount of outstanding obligations to arrive at the net surplus funds, if any.

The candidate information summary sheet also contains four tables of data on the contributors and contributions to a candidate's campaign fund. The first table (upper portion of the right side) provides data by contribution amounts. Within selected contribution amount categories, the table lists the number and percentage of itemized contributions and the dollar amount and percentage of itemized contributions in each category. Under the law, reporting candidates and committees need not report the names of contributors whose contributions aggregate $100 or less; they need only report the total amount of such contributions received during the reporting period. They are also not required to report the number of such entries. Therefore, in calculating percentages, itemized contributions were used, i.e. contributions over $100, and then the amount of contributions of $100 or less was separately calculated as a percent of the total contributions received.

The second table (middle of the right side) provides data on contributions by the type of contributor. Firstly, the table segregates the candidate's personal funds from other individual contributors to avoid distorting the average contribution from individuals. When a candidate uses his or her personal funds, the amount is usually much larger than the average individual contribution. Business contributors include both corporate and noncorporate entities. Political committees include political party committees and clubs, other campaign funds and groups established for the purpose of influencing the outcome of the election. The heading "Political Action Committees" (PACs) is comprised of three separate categories; business PACs, union PACs and other PACs. Due to the lack of a precise definition of a political action committee in the state law, a PAC is considered to be any political committee which calls itself a PAC or functions as a PAC by separately reporting its financial activity as a noncandidate-related political committee. Business-related PACs are those associated with a specific trade, profession or industry. Union PACs are those committees associated with a specific union or union local. Other PACs are, in most cases, ideological groups which represent a specific philosophy or issue. Union contributor entities represent funds from the general treasury of a union organization or a specific union local, but the contribution was not identified as being made through a separate political fund. The final category, miscellaneous, represents those contributors which clearly do not belong in any of the above categories and includes interest earned from investments of contributions.

The table of "Contributions by Contributor Type" classifies contributions in amounts of more than $100 into contributor type categories and identifies the number of contributions and the total amount contributed by each contributor type.

The set of two tables, located at the bottom left and right of the summary information sheet, organizes the contribution information by location of the contributor. Candidates and committees must report contributions in excess of $100 by the full name and mailing address of the source. Based on the information supplied by the reporting entities, contributions have been classified by three types of contributor categories: within the candidate's district, outside the district but within the state, and outside of the state. In the lower left-hand side of the information sheet, information is provided on the number and percent of the contributions by location and by contributor type. The lower right-hand side presents information on the amount and percent of contributions by location and by contributor type.

It is important to note that the location classifications are based on the addresses supplied by the reporting candidates and committees and, thus, there may well be errors in location information. Examples of how errors may arise include: an individual contributor uses a business address as his or her mailing address, an individual or business uses a post office box in the municipality other than the one in which he or she resides or conducts business, or a local association contributes but the actual check is drawn from a regional headquarters bank account.

An alphabetical listing of contributors of more than $100 by name and address for each individual candidate and committee is published by the Commission and is available for inspection and purchase. An alphabetical listing by contributor name is also available.

SECTION I

GENERAL CANDIDATE INFORMATION

In the 1981 general election, there were 262 candidates, 87 of whom vied for 40 Senate seats and 175 vied for 80 Assembly seats. Of these 262 candidates, 120 represented the Democratic party, 119 represented the Republican party, and 23 represented other parties or were Independent candidates. This section contains basic tables of information about the individuals participating in the 1981 legislative races. Each set of data is presented separately for Senate and Assembly candidates. Table 1.1 for Senate candidates and Table 1.2 for Assembly candidates identify the candidates based on their legislative district number and are grouped alphabetically within each district. Since most of the tables and information throughout this report are organized by legislative district number, Tables 1.1 and 1.2 enable the reader to identify the candidates and their district number. The 1980 census and the resulting redistricting of legislative boundaries have altered some familiar combinations of representatives and districts; for example, the legislative district number may have changed while the municipalities which comprised the district remained relatively unaltered. Hence, these listings, together with Tables 1.3 (Senate) and 1.4 (Assembly) which list the candidates in alphabetical order regardless of legislative district number, will aid the reader to overcome confusion which may result from changes brought about by redistricting.

These four tables of Senate candidates and Assembly candidates identify the candidates by full name, district number, party affiliation and incumbency status, that is whether the candidate was an incumbent, challenger or a member of the Assembly running for a Senate seat, or whether the election involved an opened seat. The tables also indicate whether the candidates were successful in their campaigns.

This section also contains four additional tables of information not directly related to the candidates' campaign financial activity. Table 1.5 is a list of 1981 officeholders who did not run for re-election, a fact that may account for familiar names which may be missing from the list of candidates. Table 1.6 is a list of 1981 members of the Assembly who ran for Senate seats in the 1981 elections. It is provided to help the reader identify candidates who appear to be missing from the Assembly list, but properly belong on the Senate candidate list. Table 1.7 identifies the 21 New Jersey counties and the legislative districts which represent each county.

Table 1.8 lists those legislative candidates who submitted a Sworn Statement in lieu of report (Form A-1) stating that expenditures on behalf of their candidacies would not exceed $1,000. Allocations of expenditures on behalf of candidates by the state political party committees were not considered in determining this $1,000 threshold. The candidates listed on this table were not included in calculating the averages appearing throughout this report since it is not possible to determine where in the range of $0 to $1,000 the candidates' campaign expenditures fall. Therefore, all averages refer to the average dollar amount expended by those 81 out of 87 Senate candidates and 152 out of 175 Assembly candidates whose expenditures exceeded $1,000 for this election.

Table 1.9 contains information concerning a candidate's supporting committee(s) which is essential to understanding the method used in compiling individual candidate financial information throughout this report. In many instances, a candidate is supported by campaign committees in addition to, or other than, his or her personal campaign fund. Candidates often pool resources with others of the same party in addition to, or in lieu of, a single candidate depository. The extent to which a candidate controls all or part of the financial activity varies. Therefore, to insure an overall view of a candidate's total campaign activity, the financial data of all the candidate's related related committees was merged under a single candidate listing. The supporting committees' contributions and expenditures were prorated to the individual candidate based on the identified porportion shown as an allocation of expenditures made on the candidate's behalf by the supporting committee in the committee's separate campaign disclosure reports. Therefore, Table 1.9 identifies the supporting committees, other than the candidate's individual campaign depository or joint campaign fund which clearly identifies the candidates supported, whose financial information is included, in whole or in part, in calculating an individual candidate's contributions and expenditures totals. This partial listing of supporting committees identifies the supporting committees included in a candidate's calculations in addition to his or her personal campaign fund or principal joint candidate depository. Each entry also identifies the percentage by the supporting committee's transactions which were prorated to the individual candidate. The individual information summary sheets in Volume 2 contain a complete listing for each of the candidates' depositories.

Since the contributions and expenditures reflected for any candidate throughout this report represent a combination of financial activity transacted through multiple depositories, it is essential to understand the method applied in calculating a candidate's total campaign activity. This method of merging various depository information provides the most accurate overview of a candidate's entire campaign. The methodology used is described in the introduction to Volume 1. Volume 2 of this report contains the individual candidate information summary sheets for each legislative candidate spending in excess of $1,000 in the 1981 general election.

SECTION II

EXPENDITURES

In 1981, legislative candidates and their supporting committees spent $4.3 million in what was the most expensive legislative campaign since the financial disclosure requirements took effect in 1973. Eighty-one of the 87 Senate candidates expended more than $1,000 on their campaign. Expenditures for these candidates totalled $2,137,625 and averaged $26,390 per candidate. In the race for Assembly seats, 152 of the 175 candidates filed statements reflecting expenditures in excess of $1,000. Expenditures for these Assembly candidates totalled $2,185,664 and averaged $14,379 per candidate.

Expenditure tables within this section provide summary information on the total expenditures for all candidates as well as individual expenditures by individual candidate. The methods used to assemble the information for these and other tables throughout the report are explained in the Introduction. The reader is urged to review the methods and underlying assumptions before referring to the tables. Table 2.1 summarizes, by district, the dollar amount expended by all Senate and Assembly candidates and includes subtotals of all candidates' expenditures by each political party. Tables 2.2 and 2.3 provide the same information separately for Senate and Assembly races.

SENATE AND ASSEMBLY CANDIDATE EXPENDITURES

Three races for Senate seats resulted in expenditures in excess of $100,000 (Districts 2, 1 and 21). The senatorial race in the second legislative district between incumbent Senator Steven Perskie (D) and challenger Joseph McGahn (R) was the most expensive senatorial race since disclosure statements were required in 1973. These two candidates expended a total of $436,731 with the unsuccessful candidate, Mr. McGahn, expending approximately $50,000 more than Senator Perskie. The total amounts expended for senatorial races in Districts 1 and 21 were $155,169 and $129,402, respectively.

Table 2.4 identifies the total expenditures for the senatorial race in each district by candidate and presents the total district expenditures in descending order. Table 2.5 provides similar information on total expenditures for the Assembly races in each district and, again, presents the total district expenditures in descending order. Assembly races in three districts (Districts 10, 30 and 2) had expenditures which exceeded $100,000. The total expenditures for assembly races were $126,403 in District 10, $106,855 in District 30, and $106,086 in District 2. These districts also are the only ones in which the voters elected one Democrat and one Republican; in the 37 other districts, the voters elected both candidates from the same party. Tables 2.6 and 2.7 present the Senate and Assembly candidates in descending order based on the dollar amount expended on behalf of their individual campaigns.

STATE POLITICAL PARTY COMMITTEES' EXPENDITURES FOR LEGISLATIVE RACES

The Democratic and Republican State Committees participated in the 1981 legislative races and spent an additional $3.6 million on behalf of their Senate and Assembly candidates. These state party committee expenditures divide into three categories. The first may be described as general party building activities. These expenses may be for organizational fund raising, the proceeds of which are used in a campaign setting, or for institutional advertising and political activity which promote the party but not any specific candidate. The second category is campaign expenditures paid for by the state committee and specifically targeted on behalf of a particular candidate or slate of candidates. Such expenditures are designed to promote a candidate's campaign directly, rather than to support all of the party's candidates. The third category of expenditures consists of those state committee services provided to, and paid for, by the candidates. Examples of such services include computer time, printing and mass mailing activities. With expenditures of this nature, the recipient candidate may transfer money from his or her campaign fund to the state committee. Transfers by the candidates may not be related to the actual cost of the services and are often based upon numerous factors including, but not limited to, the financial condition of the campaign, the nature of the race and the services (if any) provided.

The Campaign Reporting Act requires the allocation of expenditures by committees on behalf of the candidates benefitting from the transactions. Candidates acknowledge the dollar amount expended on their behalf by including the entry as part of their individual disclosure reports. The amount is included as part of the total reported expenditures on behalf of the candidate's campaign. The state political party committees were required to allocate all three categories of expenditures. However, the disclosure report is not designed to distinguish among these categories. Therefore, it is not possible, based on information within the state political party committee reports, to distinguish the three categories of expenditures for any specific candidate.

The smallest allocation of expenditures to any one candidate was $11,275 for the Democrats and $16,404 for the Republicans as of disclosure reports filed by the state committees in July, 1982. The latter includes expenditures made on behalf of candidates by the Republican National Committee. Because of the relatively large size of these allocations, and in an effort to avoid inflating individual candidates' expenditure totals, all state committee allocations were removed from the candidates' reports before calculating their receipts and expenditures.

Table 2.8 identifies those districts in which state committee allocations of expenditures to its candidates in the district totalled more than $5,000 in excess of the base allocation. This net figure was calculated by identifying the total amount of allocations of expenditures for a particular candidate and subtracting the base amount that was allocated to all candidates ($11,275 for each Democratic candidate and $16,404 for Republican candidates). The total state committee allocation figure for any candidate was further reduced by the amount transferred from the candidate's campaign fund to the state committee for the apparent purpose of reimbursing the state organization. This was done to avoid counting these expenditures twice, since the reimbursements are already included in the candidate's total expenditures. These adjustments for reimbursements by candidates to the state committees were based on information supplied on individual candidate reports. Each reporting entity is required to identify each expenditure by its purpose. However, there may exist inconsistencies throughout the reports filed by the various candidates and campaign treasurers. Nevertheless, once these adjustments were made to the total allocation figure for each individual candidate, it is reasonable to assume that the balance of the state committee allocation represents the net state committee expenditures designed to directly benefit a particular legislative district.

CUMULATIVE EXPENDITURE INFORMATION AND COMPARISONS

The 1981 legislative candidates expended 28.9 percent more than their counterparts did in 1977, the last time both houses of the legislature were contested. In 1981, 233 candidates, each expending more than $1,000, spent a total of $4.3 million, while 246 similar candidates spent $3.4 million in 1977. A more significant increase in activity between 1977 and 1981 is the six-fold increase in expenditures by the two state political party committees on behalf of legislative candidates. Total expenditures of the Democratic and Republican state party committees increased from $600,000 in 1977 to $3.7 million in 1981. This surge of state party committee activity contributed to the doubling of all legislative campaign expenditures between 1981 and 1977, an increase from $3.8 million to $8.0 million.

Senate candidates spent $2.1 million during the 1981 legislative elections. This represents a 32.9 percent increase over the $1.6 million spent in 1977. Democratic candidates account for a 22.1 percent increase between 1977 and 1981, while Republican candidates' expenditures almost doubled, from $557,000 in 1977 to $1.0 million in 1981, an increase of 82.1 percent. Total expenditure percentage increases are higher as a result of the state committee activity. The Democratic State Committee expenditures increased more than 14 times from $34,000 in 1977 to $517,000 in 1981. Republican State Committee activity increased almost three and one half times from $166,000 to $720,000.

Assembly candidates comparative totals include data for 1979, when an election was held to fill 40 Assembly seats, as well as 1981 and 1977. A comparison of total campaign expenditures for Assembly candidates in the three years shows a steady increase from $2.1 million in 1977, to $3.0 million in 1979 and $4.6 million in 1981. These totals include a five fold increase in the state party activity from $461,000 in 1979 to $2.4 million in 1981. However, if state committee expenditures are removed from the total Assembly candidate expenditures show a decline. In 1977, Assembly candidates expended a $1.7 million and in 1979 they spent $2.5 million, an increase of 45.1 percent. Yet, in 1981, total Assembly candidate expenditures declined 13.7 percent to $2.2 million.

These possible explanations have been suggested for this decrease in spending among Assembly candidates from 1979 to 1981:

- o The proposition that closely contested races result in more campaign spending - one explanation might be that there were fewer such races in 1981 than in 1979;
- o A second explanation might be that the two state political party committees paid for more of the costs of the assembly races in 1981 than the campaign committees did in 1979;

- o A third explanation addresses the economies of scale. In 1981, each party fielded three candidates in nearly every legislative district while in 1979 each party fielded two candidates; thus, in 1981, there may have been a savings accruing to Assembly candidates because they had a third running mate, the Senate candidate, with whom to share campaign expenses.

SECTION III

SUMMARY AND ANALYSIS OF CONTRIBUTIONS

This section provides summary contribution information aggregated for all 1981 legislative candidates. The information has been organized by party (Democrat and Republican), by legislative house for which the candidates ran (Senate and Assembly), by those who won and those who lost, and by the candidate's incumbency status. In addition, contribution summaries are included for the two state political party committees, both of which played prominent roles in the 1981 legislative election. Section IV provides detailed information on contributions made by political action committees. Also, lists of major contributors to legislative candidates and to the two state political party committees are provided in Section V.

Tables in this Section III have been prepared from the individual candidate information summary sheets which are contained in Volume 2 of this report. The methodology used in accumulating these figures is explained in the introduction of this Volume 1. The reader is urged to review these methods and underlying assumptions before referring to any tables contained within this report.

From the figures calculated for each individual candidate, one can determine, for example, the extent to which a candidate received his or her support from individuals, businesses, PACs or unions. Other analyses can be made using information on the location of contributors and the amount of contribution. In this Section III, the individual candidate information has been aggregated into summaries to permit the reader to make similar analyses and comparisons among the types of candidates, for example, Democrat and Republican candidates, Senate and Assembly candidates, incumbents and nonincumbents, and candidates who won and candidates who lost.

All of the tables which follow the text of this section are organized in the same manner and parallel the information displayed on the individual candidate sheets found in Volume 2. The first portion of each table provides information on contributions by type of contributor including the candidates' own funds, individuals, businesses, political committees, unions and different types of PACs. The second portion of each table provides information on contributions by location of contributor, i.e. within the district, within the state but outside the district, and outside the state. The third portion of each table displays information on contributions by dollar amount. In all three portions of the table, information is provided on the number and dollar value of the contributions, the percentage of each to the total, and the average contribution.

In total, all legislative candidates received nearly $4.7 million in contributions through the 15 day post-election report which covers activity through November 16, 1981. In addition, the two state political party committees received more than $3.7 million (Democratic State Committee - $1.6 million and Republican State Committee - $2.1 million). Since both state political party committees spent much of their money on behalf of legislative candidates, information on their contributors has been included.

What follows is an analysis of the "significant" differences, if any, which appear from various comparisons of categories of candidates. For this analysis, "significant" has been defined as a 10 or more percentage point difference in any category of contributor or contribution. For example, if winning candidates received 20 percent of their funds from individuals, and losing candidates received 80 percent of their funds from individuals, that 60 percentage point difference would be termed "significant".

COMPARISON BETWEEN DEMOCRATS AND REPUBLICANS

Democratic candidates received a total of $2.4 million in contributions and Republican candidates received $2.2 million. The patterns of contributions and contributors to Democrats and Republicans were similar; in comparing all Democrat and Republican candidates' contributions, no "significant" differences were identified. (See Table 3.2 "Contributions to All Democratic and Republican Legislative Candidates".)

COMPARISON BETWEEN SENATE AND ASSEMBLY CANDIDATES

The 81 Senate candidates which filed detailed disclosure reports received a total of $2.2 million or an average of $27,631 and the 152 Assembly candidates who filed detailed reports received a total of $2.4 million, or an average of $15,987. The only "significant" difference in the patterns of contributions to Senate and Assembly candidates was in contributions from individuals whose contributions represented a significantly larger portion of Senate candidates' contributions in comparison to Assembly candidates' contributions. Individuals provided 36.8 percent of the amount of contributions received by Senate candidates and only 15.7 percent of the amount of contributions received by Assembly candidates, a 21.1 percentage point difference. Conversely, the Assembly candidates received 39.7 percent of their contributions from political committees (other than PACs) while Senate candidates received 19 percent of their funds from such political committees, a 20.7 percentage point difference. In all other respects, patterns of contributions and contributors to Senate candidates and to Assembly candidates were similar. (See Table 3.3 "Contributions to All Senate and Assembly Candidates".)

COMPARISON BETWEEN WINNERS AND LOSERS

Candidates who won received $3.0 million in contributions while candidates who lost received $1.6 million. The only "significant" difference between contributions to those who won and to those who lost is in contributions from "business PACs" which gave significantly more contributions and more money to winners than to those who lost the election. Business PACs represented 27.5 percent of the contributors to winning candidates but only 9.4 percent to losing candidates, an 18.1 percentage point difference. As a percentage of total contributions, business PACs provided winners with 24.8 percent of their money while providing losing candidates with only 7.4 percent of their money, a 17.4 percentage point difference. In absolute numbers, there were 1,437 business PAC contributions totalling over $550,000 to winners while there were only 252 business PAC contributions of just under $90,000 to candidates who lost. (See Table 3.4 "Contributions to All Legislative Candidates Who Won and Lost".)

It is interesting to note the effect of the financial activity associated with the most expensive legislative race. All other apparent "significant" differences between winning candidates and all losing candidates are eliminated if the District 2 Senate candidates, Perskie (D) and McGahn (R), and their contributions are removed from the analysis. Thus, the apparent "significant" differences between winners and losers in three categories of contributions - i) individuals, ii) contributions within the district; and iii) contributions of $2,500 and over - disappear when the four contributions in excess of $2,500 totalling $202,263 from within District 2 to losing candidate McGahn are removed from the totals. Specifically, the percentage of funds for losing candidates from individuals drops from 35.3 percent to 22.1 percent, the percentage of funds from contributors within the candidate's district decreases from 56.9 percent to 48.2 percent and the percentage of contributions of $2,500 and over decreases from 41.4 percent to 29.9 percent. In all three categories, the resulting percentage point difference between winning candidates and losing candidates drops below the "significant" level, as defined.

COMPARISON BY INCUMBENCY STATUS

Incumbents, including members of the Assembly running for the Senate, received $2.5 million and nonincumbents received $2.1 million in contributions. Again, the patterns of contributions to incumbents and nonincumbents were very similar, with only three "significant" differences. They are:

- o Business PACs, as a contributor group, represented 27.0 percent of the contributors to incumbents while representing only 12.9

percent of the contributors to nonincumbents. The money such PACs contributed to legislative candidates represented 26.8 percent of all contributions to incumbents and only 8.9 percent of all contributions to nonincumbents, a difference of 17.9 percentage points.

- o Political committees provided 24.8 percent of the contributions to incumbents while they provided 35.8 percent of the contributions to nonincumbents, a difference of 11 percentage points.

- o Nonincumbents received more of their funds (44.5 percent) in amounts greater than $2,500 compared to 21.6 percent for incumbents, a difference of 22.9 percentage points.

Again, it is interesting to note the effect of the financial activity associated with the most expensive legislative race, District 2. The apparent "significant" difference of more contributions from within the district for nonincumbents is eliminated when the McGahn contributions are removed from the analysis; the percentage of such contributions for nonincumbents decreases from 53.4 percent to 46.3 percent, a percentage similar to the 40.6 percent for incumbents. (*See Table 3.5 "Contributions to All Incumbents and Nonincumbents".)

COMPARISON OF CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE STATE POLITICAL PARTY COMMITTEES

Contributions to the Democratic State Committee totalled $1.6 million of which $210,555 was the contribution from the Democratic National Committee. The Republican State Committee received a total of $2.1 million of which $835,291 was from the Republican National Committee. The comparison of contributions to the Democratic and Republican State Committees showed only one "significant" difference. The Democratic State Committee (DSC) received more of its total number of contributions in amounts of $100 to $250 than did the Republican State Committee (RSC), 39.8 percent versus 23.2 percent, a 16.6 percentage point difference. Conversely, the RSC received more of its total number of contributions in amounts of $1,000 to $2,499, that is, 30.3 percent for the RSC and 17.1 percent for the DSC, a 13.2 percentage point difference.

Three apparent "significant" differences between the DSC and RSC in the amount of contributions, expressed as a percentage of all contributions, by type of contributor, by location and by dollar amount are eliminated when the contributions from the two national party committees are subtracted, i.e. $210,555 from the Democratic National Committee and $835,291 from the Republican National Committee.

SUMMARY

Comparing the contributions given to the 1981 legislative candidates revealed very few, if any, "significant" differences in the contributions to different types of candidates whether the comparison was on a basis of candidates' party affiliation, the office for which they ran, their success at the polls, or their incumbency status.

SECTION IV

POLITICAL ACTION COMMITTEES

The 1981 general election experienced the doubling since the 1979 general election of the number of political action committees (PACs) contributing in excess of $1,000 to legislative candidates. Moreover, the amount contributed by PACs increased from just under $500,000 in 1979 to slightly over $900,000 in 1981. Thus, PACs in New Jersey became a greater factor in legislative candidate receipts in 1981 races than was the case in 1979; however, in 1979 only 2 Senate seats and 40 Assembly seats were contested.

New Jersey, unlike the federal government, has no registration requirement for political committees. In 1979, the Commission adopted regulations clarifying the pre-election filing requirement of political action committees. (N.J.A.C. 19:25-4.8) In that year, 30 PACs submitted financial reports listing expenditures in excess of $1,000 for the general election which included races for all 40 Assembly seats and 2 Senate seats. The 1981 general election saw a rise in the number of PACs participating in the New Jersey election with 81 committees filing disclosure reports and 67 listing expenditures of more than $1,000. Table 4.1 of this section identifies the 81 committees by full name and mailing address and the acronym by which they frequently identify themselves.

In determining the composition of this list, we could not rely solely on the name of the committee to identify those members of the specialized group referred to as "political action committees". Neither the Campaign Reporting Act nor its supporting regulations comprehensively define what a PAC is or does. Due to the lack of a precise definition of a political action committee in the state law, a PAC is considered to be any political committee which calls itself a PAC or functions as a PAC by separately reporting the financial activity as a noncandidate-related political committee. For the purpose of this report, PACs were defined to include those political committees established by entities whose major course of business is other than participating in election activity. These entities may include businesses and unions which solicit funds through separate fund raising efforts among the organization's membership or their stockholders, key executives and employees. Some PACs are funded, in whole or in part, by contributions from the general treasury of the parent organization. Also, noncandidate/nonpolitical party committees which designate themselves as PACs are also included. Ideological organizations which center around a particular topic or cause may designate themselves as PACs to the extent that a primary purpose of the organization is to solicit funds and to make contributions to candidates who support their cause.

Under New Jersey law, nearly all of these groups could make political contributions directly from their general treasury (the exceptions are regulated industries, including banks, insurance companies and public utilities (N.J.S.A. 19:34-32, 19:34-45)). Furthermore, casinos and many casino employees are also prohibited from making any political contributions. (N.J.S.A. 5:12-138)

Along with the increased number of political action committees participating in the 1981 legislative races, there was an increase in the total amount of funds contributed by these committees. In 1979, 30 PACs contributed $490,489 to legislative candidates, an amount representing 14 percent of the candidates' campaign fund. In 1981, the number increased to 74 PACs providing $914,223, which represented 21 percent of all contributions received in excess of $100 by Senate candidates and 27 percent by Assembly candidates. Altogether, political action committees contributed $1,260,106 to candidates and committees throughout New Jersey for the 1981 general election. Table 4.2 identifies the contribution totals made by the various political action committees.

The number of committees contributing $15,000 or more increased from 10 to 21. New Jersey Dental PAC, New Jersey Organization For A Better State and Lawyers Encouraging Government And Law were among the five largest contributors in both 1979 and 1981. New Jersey Dental PAC contributed the largest amount, $93,050 to legislative candidates and a total of $102,100 to all races in the 1981 general election, including legislative seats.

Each successful Senate and Assembly candidate received contributions from political action committees. Nevertheless, of the five candidates for Senate receiving the largest amount of PAC funds, two lost the election. Furthermore, the two, Senators Herbert (D/39) and Bedell (D/13), were also incumbents. Of the 55 candidates who received no PAC funds, 23 were Republicans, 10 were Democrats and 2 were Independents. None of the 55 won the election.

It is important to note that the information presented in this section is based on the disbursement information reported by the political action committees, themselves. All contributions reported were made within the time frame of the 1981 general election activity. Nevertheless, a candidate is not obligated to use the funds for that election. For example, a legislative candidate with debts outstanding for the primary election could properly deposit these funds into his or her separate, segregated primary depository and report the receipt on the next subsequent 60 day reporting cycle for the primary election. Also, a candidate may make an undeposited transfer by endorsing the check over to another campaign depository who would then report the receipt within the content of its own report. Therefore, it is possible for differences to exist between this list of contributions as reported by the contributor and that contribution information reported by the candidate.

The available data concerning the relationship between political action committees and candidates and how this $1.2 million is divided are extensive. This section of the report makes the data available and sorts the information based on most frequent inquiries received by the Commission.

SECTION V

DETAILED CONTRIBUTOR LISTINGS

The Campaign Contributions and Expenditures Reporting Act requires candidates and political committees participating in the election to identify the full name and mailing address of all contributors of more than $100 in the aggregate. Legislative candidates received 6,790 such contributions which account for nearly $3.4 million of their campaign funds. The state party committees reported another 2,047 contributions in excess of $100 representing an additional $3.5 million available for legislative races. The Commission maintains a computerized summary of these entries which is available for public inspection and purchase.

The median contributions for both Senate and Assembly candidates fell within the $101-$250 range. For the Senate candidates, 58 percent of the contributions and for the Assembly candidates, 62 percent of the contributions fell within the $101-$250 range. Yet, it was the contributions of $1,000 or more which comprised the majority (54 percent for Senate candidates and 59 percent for Assembly candidates) of all itemized campaign receipts. Of all contributions received in amounts in excess of $100, the average contribution was $500;* thus, contributors of $1,000 or more represent a significant factor in raising the average contribution for campaigns. For this reason, this section of the 1981 legislative general election report identifies those contributors of $1,000 or more to legislative candidates in a detailed listing of contributors (Table 5.1). As with all of the candidate data contained in this report, multiple contributions from one contributor to a candidate's campaign fund and also to his or her supporting committees are combined as a single entry. For example, if John Smith contributed $600 to the candidate Jones' campaign fund and an additional $500 to the Citizens to Elect Jones, John Smith appears as a contributor of $1,100 to candidate Jones. (Please refer to either the candidate's individual financial summary information sheets in Volume 2 or Table 1.9 of the General Candidate Information Section I for a partial listing of the identity of a candidate's supporting committees.)

For the Democratic and Republican State Committees, the largest dollar amounts of the itemized campaign fund categories are those contributions received in amounts in excess of $2,500. The Democrats received 86 such entries representing $932,283. $210,555 represents funds contributed by the Democratic National Committee. The Republicans reported 89 entries totalling $1,410,509 of which $835,291 was from the Republican National Committee. The total amount of funds received in contribution amounts of more than $2,500 represent 59 and 73 percent of the Democratic and Republican State Committees' itemized receipts, respectively.

Tables 5.2 and 5.3 identify these 175 contributors to the two state political party committees.

A third group of contributors to the 1981 legislative elections which appears to be a noteworthy factor in this campaign activity represents those who contribute to multiple candidate campaigns. If no one candidate received $1,000 from such a contributor, the contributing entity would not appear on Table 5.1 of this section. However, 38 individuals, and 41 businesses made contributions in excess of $2,500, in the aggregate, to the legislative races in the 1981 general election. Hence, Tables 5.4 and 5.5 identify individuals and businesses as contributors to various campaigns. Table 5.6 identifies contributions to multiple campaigns by unions and union associates. Please note that Tables 5.4 through 5.6 may repeat certain contributors from the list of contributors of $1,000 or more to individual legislative candidates.

More importantly, these aggregate contribution lists may differ in identifying the contribution recipients because of the formula used to aggregate the candidate's campaign fund and his or her supporting committees. (Please refer to the Introduction for additional information concerning this formula.) For example, candidate Jones receives a $500 contribution to his campaign fund from John Smith. Candidate Jones' supporting committee, Citizens for Legislative Integrity, supports candidate Jones on a 50 percent basis and also receives a $2,000 contribution from John Smith. On Table 5.1 in this section, John Smith appears as a contributor to candidate Jones in the aggregate amount of $1,500.

However, on Table 5.4, John Smith is listed as a contributor of a total amount of $2,500; the contribution recipients are candidate Jones ($500) and Citizens for Legislative Integrity ($2,000). Both listings are accurate. Please remember that an individual candidate's total campaign activity has been calculated to represent not only those transactions through his or her personal campaign fund, but also, a portion of all transactions through any of his or her supporting committees based on the percentage of the candidate's share of expenditures allocated to all candidates. Merging of such activity was essential to provide an accurate overview of all campaign activity when a candidate is being supported through more than one depository.

Table 5.6 presents contributions to multiple campaigns by unions and union affiliated associations. Some of these organizations are discussed in the Political Action Committee Section (Section IV) of this report. However, as outlined in that section, unions are not required to establish a separate political action committee in order to contribute to political campaigns in New Jersey. This report aggregated only those contributions for which the reporting entity or entities listed the same name and address. Therefore, a union contributing funds from its general treasury account and also from its political action committee account would not necessarily be merged, unless the contributing organization made some indication to the Commission that the contributor and/or the controlling entities of the two funds were one and the same. A similar situation exists with contributions from the various local union affiliates. Therefore, Table 5.6 groups similar contributors, such as unions and union associations, by trade, skill or type of employer. It also identifies the contributor name and city as reported by the receiving entity, to whom the contribution was made and the contribution amount. Each trade subsection is totalled by dollar amount. A grand total identifies the amount of contributions reported as being received from all union and union associations for the 1981 legislative races. Those entries with an asterisk do not include detailed recipients because this information is provided in the PAC Section (Section IV) of this report. Please refer to Section IV's committee/candidate matrix (Table 4.5) for this detailed information.
